

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method of and an apparatus for the rapid imaging of particles such as, for example, cells, in a flow volume. The present invention enables convenient, automated analysis of particles in a two-dimensional imaged frame confined by the walls of a thin, transparent, three-dimensional flow cell.

Cellular Imaging